Mitutoyo Announces Non-Participation in Control Show Stuttgart 2024: Promises Exciting Presence in 2025

Mitutoyo, a global leader in precision measuring instruments and metrology solutions, announces its decision to not exhibit at the Control Show Stuttgart in 2024.

Neuss, Germany – January, 2024. This year, the Japanese metrology giant is aiming its focus towards participating in various dedicated industry-related trade shows across Europe, showcasing innovations in photonics, grinding technology, EV and Battery, Machinery, and more.

Mitutoyo acknowledges the significance of the Control Show in Stuttgart and expresses gratitude for the longstanding partnership with the event. However, in the spirit of strategic planning and customer engagement, Mitutoyo has decided to reallocate its resources to industry-specific exhibitions in 2024, creating more targeted opportunities to connect with customers and partners. This decision aligns with Mitutoyo's never-ending commitment to delivering cutting-edge solutions and innovations in the world of quality assurance.

By participating in trade shows tailored to specific industries, Mitutoyo aims to engage more closely with professionals and enthusiasts, providing a platform to showcase advancements in metrology and precision measurement technologies.

Mitutoyo invites customers, partners, and industry stakeholders to visit them at the various trade shows scheduled for 2024. The company is excited to share its latest developments, foster collaborations, and discuss industry trends in a more specific setting.

Mitutoyo plans to return to Control Show Stuttgart in 2025 with a robust presence, bringing forth a multitude of novelties and advancements in
